

All Saints' Church

Privacy and Live Streaming Policy

All Saints Church live streams Sunday morning services via YouTube.

Anyone can access the live stream without needing a link or an invitation to join and can view the recording after the service has finished.

This means that we have no control over who is accessing our services. Therefore, we need to be mindful of any potential privacy or safeguarding concerns that members of the congregation might have. To address this, we have agreed the following:

- We will ensure that only the sanctuary appears on the live stream.
- People who are especially concerned to avoid appearing on screen can enter the church and use the ramp and sit in the raised section or children's play area to be certain to avoid the camera.
- We will divert the camera to show just the cross during distribution of communion or other communal activities at the sanctuary.
- We will consult with baptismal parties to agree what they would like to happen on a case-by-case basis.
- We will permanently and irrevocably delete the service recordings, normally after around two weeks.

The trustees of All Saints' Church, Berkhamsted formally accepted this policy at the Church Council meeting held on 7th October 2026
